WHERE LIES THE COMPROMISE?

A one day seminar on how to get consent and agreement takes place on Saturday 20th May in the Staff Common Room of Queen's University, Belfast. The day's proceedings include a look at different voting systems, democratic rights for minorities, workshops (including voting, power-sharing and decision making systems), and actual genuine voting on proposals invited from a wide spectrum. Sponsored by Fortnight Educational Trust, the day will run from 9.30 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. Admission free; lunch and tea on offer. Contact Fortnight Educational Trust at 01232 - 711795 or fax 232850.

MEDIATION NETWORK

The Mediation Network for Northern Ireland continues to expand. It now has six core staff. They are: Brendan McAllister, director; Clare Morrison, administrator; Joe Campbell, training officer; Martin McAnallen, development officer, justice programme; Naomi Lederach, development officer family and child care programme; John Lederach, development officer, churches programme. The Mediation Network's vision statement expresses its intention to "promote third-party intervention in disputes and to support creative responses to conflict in the community."

THE (KNOCK)LAYD BACK APPROACH FROM CORMYMEELA

Knocklayd House and Cottage in Glenshesk, one of the Glens of Antrim, was gifted to the Corrymeela Community by Peter and Valerie Tennant. It is now open as a place of peace, refreshment and renewal where individuals or small groups can take time out; the Cottage has space for one or two people at a time in addition to the resident community members; the Annex can accommodate a maximum of 15 people sharing. The availability of this facility is seen as complementing the Corrymeela Centre outside Ballycastle. Contact: Corrymeela Community Knocklayd, 28 Stroan Road, Glenshesk, Arroy, Ballymoney, BT53 8RY, phone 012857 - 52521.

POSSIBLE LESSONS FROM SOUTH AFRICA

A small group associated with INNATE is publishing a 38-page pamphlet (A4) looking at possible lessons for Northern Ireland from the process of transition in South Africa. Areas covered include; human rights, the Goldstone and Truth Commissions, policing, peace committees, monitoring, reconstruction and development, and the background to transition in South Africa. The purpose is not to make simplistic comparisons but see if learning is possible from a study of detailed subject areas. The pamphlet is available at £1 from INNATE, 16 Ravensdene Park, Belfast BT6 0DA.

RESTORATIVE JUSTICE

The Ulster Quaker Service Committee has published a report on its September 1994 'Restorative Justice' conference. This comprehensive report includes background information, the text of the talks given at the conference, plus additional articles and a bibliography. The 101-page (A4) report is available from Ulster Quaker Service Committee, 22 Marlborough Park North, Belfast BT9 6HJ, phone 01232 - 665191.

ACADEMIC RESEARCH ON CONFLICT

Academic research on conflict has two main centres in Ireland, Coleraine and Limerick. On the other hand of the academic spectrum, peace studies courses exist at Magee College in Derry at both undergraduate and post-graduate level, and at postgraduate level at the Irish School of Ecumenics in Dublin. Here's a quick run down on the academic research bodies:

Centre for the Study of Conflict

Part of the University of Ulster at Coleraine, this has been established since the late 1970s. Much of its work has focussed on the conflict in Northern Ireland; it has carried on research on institutions such as the educational system, the churches, sport, local government, housing and the police, and on social groups such as children, women etc.. It has had action research projects based there and organised a variety of seminars and conferences, as well as publishing a range of material. The director of the Centre is Prof Seamus Dunn. Centre for the Study of Conflict, University of Ulster, Coleraine BT52 1SA. Phone 01265 - 44141 ext 4666, or fax 01265 - 324917.

Ethnic Studies Network

This is a world-wide network of people involved in ethnic conflict research, with over three hundred members. It publishes a bulletin twice a year. Ethnic Studies Network, University of Ulster, Coleraine BT52 1SA. Phone 01265 - 44141 ext 4649, or fax 01265 - 324937. Contact; Lyn Moffatt.

INCORE - Initiative on Conflict Resolution and Ethnicity

This recently evolved project has a United Nations University connection; its research focus will be on ethnic conflict and the concerns of the United Nations, regional organisations and NGOs. It is already involved in training for UN military and civilian peacekeepers and is setting up a meta database on conflict and ethnicity which is up and running. It will be involved in other researches. The director of INCORE is John Darby and the research director Valerie Morgan. INCORE, University of Ulster, Coleraine BT52 1SA. Phone 01265 - 44141 ext 4649, fax 01265 - 324937.

Irish Peace Institute Research Centre

This has the aim to contribute to the process of peace-building through programmes of education and research directed to the development of mutual understanding and cooperation. The director is Prof Dominic Murray. Irish Peace Institute, University of Limerick, Limerick. Phone 061 - 333644; fax 061 - 330316.
