

Masculinity and violence

A very high percentage of almost all forms and levels of violence is perpetrated by men—from inter-personal violence right through to out and out warfare.

So why are there no major efforts at a societal level to move from violent, patriarchal and outdated concepts of masculinity and gender?

It's not the elephant in the room.

It's too big for the room.